

"This week, Tanya Bonakdar Gallery presents an online exhibition of artworks dealing with the premise of suspension.

There is something undeniably magical about a body in suspension; the feeling of floating. In both form and concept, that which is suspended presents a neutral zone between fantasy and reality. Within our normally grounded lives, the feeling of suspension seems to find us only in dreams. Psychic sites where fantasy, fear, alternate futures and newfound pasts coexist. This space of introspection, existing outside of time and familiarity, is where our reality fragments and the shards of daily life coalesce into new kaleidoscopic visions, embodied in artworks untethered to convention. While our reality remains paused, it is through these fantastical sites that we float, like a body in salt water, elegant, lyrical, contemplative; suspended."
