FUTURE WITHOUT FEAR

Kennedi Carter, Naima Green, Abdi Ibrahim,
Clifford Prince King, Doug Segars, and Magdalena Wosinska

Curated by THE WORK

12 January - 28 January 2023

“If you had no fear, no barriers, who would you be?” In FUTURE WITHOUT FEAR, photographers Kennedi Carter, Naima Green, Abdi Ibrahim, Clifford Prince King, Doug Segars, and Magdalena Wosinska reveal how their subjects imagine their future amidst nuanced topics of mental health, young Black motherhood, alienation, individuality, intersectionality, poverty, and community. The result is a multi-faceted creative platform that showcases the vision, tenacity, and optimism of those working to lead us into our collective future – a world without boundaries, outdated modalities, and most importantly without fear. The exhibition is curated by THE WORK in partnership with Southern New Hampshire University, Lumina Foundation, and Friends at Work.

THE WORK created FUTURE WITHOUT FEAR to explore the hopes and dreams of young people from underrepresented communities as they navigate through this moment in history. “The young people of this generation are burdened by negativity and a lack of access to resources to have the space and opportunity to dream about their future,” said Rob English, co-founder and CEO, THE WORK. “Future Without Fear is our ‘hope bomb’ to create cultural change through the amplification of underrepresented voices. This exhibit is meant to be a catalyst for meaningful conversations that start to break down barriers and allow visitors to visualize a future that is not defined by fear.”

FUTURE WITHOUT FEAR features world-class talent that embody the underrepresented communities that the exhibition aims to highlight. The exhibition is accompanied by a series of workshops created in partnership with Da Vinci RISE, and will be led by local leaders in education, technology and culture. They aim to create a space for young people to discuss the inspirational and difficult themes covered in the show.
