

Piotr Uklański
RED, WHITE AND BLUE

When Piotr, the immigrant, embarks on an inward road trip to examine his aspirations and dreams, his journey leads him through the palette of ideology, counter-cultural history and exploitation.

He begins a new life but remains haunted by a terrifying secret. Just when he thinks he's completed his quest in the forest of identity forever - his heart has other ideas. Fate takes an unexpected turn with the arrival of his daughter.

Building tensions and resentments soon explode into desperate self-seeking warfare. For his art to find the room to grow—midst his yearning for love and attention—he must trust an unlikely source. He has questions about what happened and will stop at nothing to learn truth about himself.

On January 28th Massimo De Carlo presents Red, White and Blue, a solo exhibition of most recent series of works by Piotr Uklański.
