I like the idea of a work of art containing both irony and sincerity. Let 'em fight it out.

I think that painting relates very neatly to inner travel and the exploration of inner worlds. With painting, I always get the impression that you're sort of entering into a shared space. There's everyone who has painted in the past, and everyone who is painting in the present.

—Joe Bradley

Gagosian Gallery is pleased to present new paintings, drawings, and sculptures by Joe Bradley at 980 Madison Avenue and to announce our representation of the artist. This is his first solo exhibition with the gallery.
