

ERNESTO NETO: Slow iis good

April 14 – May 25, 2012
Galleries 1 & 2

For immediate release

For his exhibition Slow iis good, Ernesto Neto presents a series of vibrantly colored installations of crocheted polypropylene and polyester cord that hang from the ceiling, hovering several feet above the ground. These new works continue Neto's practice of using gravity, weight, and tension to dictate form as plastic balls in different shades provide a counterweight for the crocheted sheets. Stretching the crocheted membranes taught, the balls form a floor for the labyrinthine, tunnel-like structures of alluring color and inviting texture that the gallery visitor is meant to enter and explore.

Crochet has become an important part of Neto's formal vocabulary over the last two years, and the artist has translated this craft traditionally done by women on a small, delicate scale to structures of massive proportions. The basic units of crochet, string and knots, serve as Neto's paint and his paintbrush, with the gallery as his canvas. Like giant paintings that the visitor is invited to climb into and move through, the installations provide an opportunity to experience the gallery space from the inside of the artwork itself. Looking out through a screen of colors— oranges and grays, greens and purples, blues and yellows—the viewer's perspective is reoriented, as the boundary between artwork and visitor is blurred. While breaking down the barriers between installation and viewer, these new works simultaneously propose a change in our relationship to time. By lifting us off the ground, to float between the floor and the ceiling, Neto offers us a space in which we can slow down, breathe, and rest.

Although these are spaces meant for relaxation, they are created through a meticulous, labor-intensive process. Each element is hand crocheted from multicolored strings that the artist combines from a wide-ranging spectrum of threads. The intense, subtle, and sophisticated juxtapositions of color that Neto chooses are then woven together into a single strand, and knotted into circular units that combine to become the walls of the sculptures. The irregular circles of crochet that compose the nets simultaneously resemble cells seen through a microscope, and a network of constellations unfurled across the sky. Here, the inside and the outside universe are represented in the same form, demonstrating the interconnectivity of life.

Not only do the works resemble and reference natural, organic matter, they also incorporate it: the installation in the main space upstairs includes, stones, plants, and spices. These natural materials serve as a kind of landscape for the main structure of the installation, which itself resembles an amoeba-like animal floating in space. The fusion of figure and ground, or animal and landscape, is a central part of Neto's practice. Just as his work blurs the boundary between artwork and viewer, inviting the visitor to inhabit and experience it on a visceral, primal level, it also draws no distinction between types of life—we are all a part of the natural world.

Neto's opening at the gallery will be followed by a solo presentation at the Nasher Sculpture Center in Dallas, opening May 11 and on view through September 9. Recent major exhibitions for the artist include La lengua de Ernesto: retrospectiva 1987-2011, at the Museo de Arte Contemporáneo de Monterrey, MARCO, Mexico, traveling to Antiguo Colegio de San Idelfonso, Mexico City, Mexico, 2011-2012 (solo); Ernesto Neto: O Bicho SusPensa na PaisaGen, Los Molinos Exhibition Hall, Faena Art District, Buenos Aires, Argentina, 2011 (solo); Ernesto Neto: The Edges of the World, Hayward Gallery, Southbank Centre, London, UK, 2010 (solo); Ernesto Neto: Intimacy, Astrup Fearnley Museum of Modern Art, Oslo, Norway, 2010 (solo); Dengo, Museu de Arte Moderna de São Paulo, Brazil, 2010 (solo); and anthropodino, Park Avenue Armory, New York, NY, 2009 (solo) among others.

For further information, please contact the gallery at 212-414-4144 or mail@tanyabonakdargallery.com.

Ernesto Neto - Slow iis good

April 14 - May 25, 2012

Downstairs Entry

SoundWay

2012 polypropylene and polyester rope, metal bells, seed pods

approximate overall installed dimensions: 115 x 268 x
35 inches; 292 x 680.7 x 89 cm
(TBG 13922)

Grub

2012

polypropylene and polyester rope, plastic balls, and wood
32 x 45 x 15 inches; 81.3 x 114.3 x 38 cm
(TBG 13932)

Downstairs Main Gallery

(clockwise from left)

The Island Bird

2012

polypropylene and polyester rope, plastic balls
approximate overall installed dimensions: 14' x 31'6" x 21'6";
426.7 x 960.1 x 655.3 cm
(TBG 13923)

Grub Measure

2012

polypropylene and polyester rope, plastic balls, wood
59 x 147 1/2 x 18 3/4 inches; 149.9 x 374.7 x 47.6 cm
(TBG 13924)

Two Floats and a Hill

2012

polypropylene and polyester rope and plastic balls in 3 parts
approximate overall installed dimensions: 25 1/2 x 56 x
56 inches; 64.8 x 142.2 x 142.2 cm
(TBG 13928)

Downstairs Main Gallery

(continued)

Fluffy Flo Float, H2O

2012

polypropylene and polyester rope and plastic balls in 3 parts

approximate overall dimensions: 17 1/2 x 72 x

63 inches; 44.5 x 183 x 160 cm

(TBG 13927)

Float

2012

polypropylene and polyester rope, plastic balls

12 1/2 x 34 x 34 inches; 31.8 x 86.4 x 86.4 cm

(TBG 13926)

Sorry, I Don't Know Exaclly Where to Go

2012

polypropylene and polyester rope, plastic balls, wood

116 x 153 x 20 inches; 294.6 x 388.6 x 50.8 cm

(TBG 13925)

Upstairs Entry

Labor

2012

polypropylene and polyester rope, aluminum, plywood, and spinning machine

approximate overall dimensions: 105 x 122 x 90 inches; 266.7 x 309.9 x 228.6 cm

(TBG 13918)

Upstairs Project Gallery

as yet untitled

2012

polypropylene and polyester rope and plastic balls

approximate overall dimensions: 148 x 90 x 40 inches; 375.9 x

228.6 x 101.6 cm

(TBG 13919)

Upstairs Project Gallery

[continued]

as yet untitled

2012

polypropylene and polyester rope and plastic balls
approximate overall dimensions: 96 x 103 x 42 inches; 243.8 x
261.6 x 106.7 cm
(TBG 13920)

Upstairs Main Gallery

The Sun Lits Life, Let the Sun

2012 polypropylene and polyester rope, plastic balls, plants, terra cotta, black pepper, turmeric, cumin, and cloves approximate overall installed dimensions: 11'5" x 23'4" x 40'9" ; 348 x

711.2 x 1242.1 cm
(TBG 13921)